

Faith-based Counselling

Can be provided through a religious group setting such as a Church.

It can include Christian Counselling, Muslim Counselling, or Buddhist Counselling.

It can centre around or support a person's spirituality, faith, belief system and religion.

May help with rapport and a genuine understanding of your spiritual beliefs and your religious practices and principles.

If the counsellor shares the same faith with you, they may have understanding of how your faith influences your options and decisions for your life.
